- I. Claims 59-61 , drawn to EPG's, classified in class 725, subclass 39.
- II. Claims 62-77, 83-91, 111-116 and 138-143, drawn to audio distribution by accessing a remote server, classified in class 709, subclass 219.

The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as playing programs from a schedule and mapping data representing the station, day and time to auxiliary information. Invention II has a separate utility such as audio distribution by making requests to a remote server. Invention III has a separate utility such as video distribution with upstream communication by requesting supplemental information for TV programs. Invention IV has a separate utility such as accessing a remote database. See MPEP § 806.05(d).
